To whom it may concern:

We've been doing business with Ilcor for a number of years now, and have never been disappointed in their work. They've built numerous portable classroom buildings at several of our campuses, and have always done a fine job. Any problems that surfaced have been dealt with quickly and to our satisfaction, every time, without fail.

We gave them a particularly difficult project just this past summer. We told them we needed them to build 10 new portables at 4 different campuses using 2 different specs, permitting through 2 different municipalites – and to get it all done between the close of school in June and the start of school in August.

They pulled it off, and we are well pleased with the results.

I would recommend this company to anyone who is looking for a builder who provides good workmanship, value pricing, and who knows the importance of keeping to a schedule.

Sincerely,
